“ This is her son I'm 14 years old and on may 30th was my first birthday without her I wish I coulda did so much better back then but I'm not here to talk bout the bad but the good and some good memories I had will be explained through this messages 1. We used to make so many corny jokes even when it wasn't funny we still made each other laugh like your breath is so hot whatever we came up with it was so stupid but so funny 2. She supported me through it all my dumb little inventions back when I was younger or when I used to wanna play soccer I was so terrible and when I started to play football she showed up to my games and supported me even when I had bad games or good games and she may have not showed up to every game but she tried to do every game 3. She always did her best she gave me everything even she didn't have like when I wanted a bag of chips she was meant to spend on gas she spent it on me or when she brought me n my friends to a waterpark she didn't have enough so she went to get money she didn't even have to spend I wish I could share but I can't I just wanted to let yall know she may have not been perfect but she was best person n mother you could ask for even times when you wanted to hate you couldn't. Rest in peace to the strongest women I ever known
